Viega was the first in the industry to develop a parallel water distribution system known as the MANABLOC.

A MANABLOC system uses a home-run concept with dedicated lines to each fixture in a home with the following benefits:

- 3/8" or 1/2" PEX lines available to supply required fixture demands, ensuring optimal efficiency.
- Flexible PEX tubing makes installations fast and easy to install.
- Quiet operation with minimized flow noise compared to copper tubing.
- Complies with most green efficiency code supplements.
- Faster hot water delivery is possible through dedicated lines to each plumbing fixture.

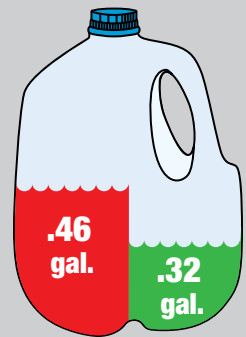

How does the Viega MANABLOC stand up against the competition?

- Manifolds are fully assembled and tested at the factory and include individual port shut-off valves.
- With the industry's largest internal reservoir (1-1/4"), less dramatic temperature and pressure changes will be recognized.
- Fewer behind-the-wall fittings.
- Components used in the MANABLOC system are designed to resist scaling and corrosion.
- Multiple port connection options are available.
- Recognized third-party system listing ensures code compliance, compatibility and warranty for all Viega components.
- Entire water distribution system controlled from one location.
- Transferable 10-year warranty.

Why 3/8" Tubing?

Volume stored in 50 ft of PEX tubing:

1/2" vs. 3/8"

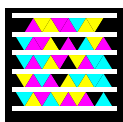

The benefits of 3/8" tubing:

- Ideal for use with low demand fixtures
- Twice-as-fast hot water delivery
- Less water wasted down the drain
